THE SUCCESS OF THE POPULAR LOAN.

The success of the popular loan has a meaning and significance that politicians may as well try to understand. It is not alone that interest shall be reduced and shall be kept among our own people, but that this city shall be no longer extravagantly governed and plunged in debt for partisan purposes. Under the old regime the city officials were given justice of the peace jurisdiction over the large justice district and made enormous fees out of criminal prosecutions largely fostered by themselves at the expense of the county. This power was expressly given them by the party machine in the legislature so that the party managers could in return levy large campaign contributions upon these city officials and control county politics and carry elections.

The moment the machine saw it had lost its "pull" by losing control of the city government, it sought to defeat the charter amendment of the legislature. In this it did succeed in taking away the justice court jurisdiction outside the city, which it had always retained as "political preserves," to raise campaign funds, and control the criminal element, as well as to run in illegal voters.

Under this system the city of Salem and the county of Marion were being plunged in debt so rapidly that the best and most conscientious Republicans of this Republican city determined to call a halt. They deliberately united with Democrats, Populists and Socialists to dethrone the party machine and put a check on farther destruction and exploitation of the city.

The net result of six months of non-partisan citizen's administration are expenses reduced below income, stoppage of running up criminal litigation against the county, city warrants at a premium and an eight per cent debt funded at par at four per cent. Even those who most bitterly opposed refunding the floating debt with a popular low rate home loan now admit that it was the only correct course to pursue.

Those who opposed bonds said they did so not because they could not trust the present council, but because they feared they could not keep such a council in office. In other words the old party leaders distrust themselves. They know the spoils system of rewarding officials with high salaries and fees, so as to make them for campaign funds, is wrong. But they have not the moral courage to strike down a system on which their party machinery is built. In place of paying their own campaign bills out of their own pockets they have collected them in advance from the people. This has resulted in high taxes.

corrupt politics and loss of confidence by the people. Party government no longer stands for principle but for plunder.

EXPLANATION OF MR. GATCH'S CONDUCT.

SALEM, July 20, 1899.
EDITOR JOURNAL:—A number of my neighbors are anxious to know and understand the action of some of our public men, and, our means of information being limited, have concluded to ask THE JOURNAL for what is wanted.

It will be remembered, that at the beginning of the new city administration, Ex-Mayor Gatch, with considerable flourish of trumpets, stated to the new mayor, that if the city council took one step towards issuing of bonds for the relief of the city, he, Gatch, would, and had already taken measures, to enjoy them, and denouncing it in bitter and sarcastic terms. Notwithstanding, the council proceeded quietly, through two elections, and much annoying delay. This morning the bonds were opened for a subscription for 4 per cent bonds, and the ex-mayor nearly broke his neck to be the first to put his name down for the despised bonds. The small man, who worked and voted for the bond issue, is lost in the mad rush of bond seekers. Will you explain the cause of this change, if you can? If this is a huge joke, we all want to laugh at it.

The above from a Salem Republican is respectfully referred to Mr. Gatch for explanation. THE JOURNAL believes Mr. Gatch sincere in his support of a popular loan. He feared that many others feared, that the bonds would go, like all previous issues, to Eastern bond buyers or to their local representatives. We care not how many times a man has been wrong, when he gets right, give him credit. Mr. Gatch, like many others, is moved by two opposing motives—the desire to remain in good standing with his party and the desire to do what is right. Both desires are not always to be gratified, except at the expense of the public. Party zeal led Mr. Gatch to nominate and support the Push ticket and oppose the charter and the issue of bonds. A desire to do right and follow the dictates of his conscience led Mr. Gatch to set forth the facts of the deplorable condition of our city finances in a letter to THE JOURNAL that opened the eyes of the people to overthrow the nominees of his Push convention. Party zeal led Mr. Gatch to threaten this administration with injunction proceedings. His sense of right and duty led him in the other direction and he wanted to be first on the popular bond subscription. It is a compliment to a non-partisan administration that so intense a partisan as Mr. Gatch should turn square around in his desire to do what is right and support a good cause, even after it had received his fiercest opposition and unqualified condemnation.

INGERSOLL

The world's most noted infidel and agnostic has passed beyond. We do not use these words as a reflection upon the man, but to designate him as he honestly wished to be known, a distinction he sought and merited. His end came on earth while discussing what to eat, and happily conversing with his wife. He passed away with a laugh on his lips.

"He leaned his head upon his hand, which rested on the back of the chair.

There was not even a sigh or a groan a death came. Death came to him as he had recently expressed a desire it should. He often, in old times, said he wished to die slowly, with full consciousness, so he might tell those about him how he felt. Recently, he experienced a change, his desire being to die painlessly and without warning.

His wish was that his deathbed might be surrounded by Christian ministers so they might see that he had no fear of a future life, but this dramatic desire could not be realized.

It is difficult to draw many useful lessons from the career of Robert G. Ingersoll. The one Great service he rendered was to prevent religious stagnation and keep stirred the waters of thought and thus helped purify the fountain from which the millions slake their spiritual thirst. Without an Ingersoll to knock the branches off the ship of progress it would not make its voyage half so rapidly.

Born with a bent for humor, satire, ridicule and buffoonery, he played the clown of infidelity and defended the dogmas of agnosticism with the spirit of a stump speaker and the skill of a talented advocate. He frankly said he could make more money doing that than his brother could as Presbyterian preacher and he proved his sincerity by the gullibility of the crowds who flocked to hear him do it.

But let us not despise and condemn Ingersoll. He possessed courage and ability. He was bold and daring to make his career in this age when at least the forms of religion have a greater hold on human society than ever before. He was a representative of his age in being a materialist and he ended his career in truly materialistic fashion.

BUFFOONERY VERSUS RELIGION

The people who went to hear Sam Jones lecture at Gladstone Park came away with various impressions. Some were simply amused, others felt better, many had little to say, and some were disappointed and disgusted. Admitting Jones has homely wit and originality, what is the secret of his drawing crowds?

Is it not that he does in the domain of orthodoxy, what Ingersoll did in the field of infidelity—play the buffoon?

Jones is a preacher, a teacher of religion, and his popularity and the larger part of his standing and influence and ability grows out of that fact. The title of Reverend and the fact that he speaks in the name of religion is his warrant of authority to make money and entertain and amuse the people. And what use does he make of it?

His saying to the ladies of his audience that not one among them had a man for a husband, but just a thing stuck in a pair of old breeches, is not calculated to teach the young "to honor thy father and mother." His saying that if he had a beautiful daughter he would pray God to amite her with smallpox, is not showing that respect for the temple of the soul, as Paul reverently refers to our body.

His condemnation of the public schools is not an intelligent or patriotic treatment of the problem of education. It reveals that, that Jones is a small-minded ignorant sectarian, because without the liberalizing restraint upon society that comes from a general spread of intelligence, there would be more desire on the part of the churches to cut each other's throats than there is.

Beecher once said follow the crowds and you go to hell. The crowds who browse on the fodder thrown before them by men like Ingersoll and Sam Jones are excusable on the ground of a desire for entertainment, and it is a revelation that after all with the multitude the religious nature is not highly developed and people are good citizens more because they are restrained by laws and public morality than by perception of what is spiritual truth.

"To Err Is Human."
People like to talk about attractive things in advertising. In a company recently the proverb above quoted, which appeared at the head of one of a well constructed series of advertisements of Hood's Sarsaparilla, was so much discussed that we doubt if any one there will ever forget the source whence it came. Messrs. Hood & Co. are using proverb advertisements on a very broad scale, and they are attracting discussion and favorable comment everywhere.

Brown—Well, my dear girl, I should have thought that you'd have been rather pleased that I won fifty pounds. It isn't as if I betted regularly, but I had the tip that the horse simply couldn't lose.

My Brown—That's all very well, but I only trust that it won't lead you into bad habits, and I think you might have had the decency to put on a little for me.—Punch.

People say Hood's Sarsaparilla cures when all other preparations fail to do any good, and you run no risk in trying it a fair trial.

A story at the expense of the Colonial Secretary is going the rounds. Mr. Chamberlain, when a little boy, was playing one day with his sister at a game of "battles"—each child having a regiment of toy soldiers and a penguin to fire at the enemy. The little girl's sisters went down quickly under her brother's heavy firing, and he was proclaimed the victor. Thoughtful child, he had glued his men to the floor.—Argonaut.

Fishing for Health.

When a man breaks down with that dread disease, consumption, and recognizes his condition, he starts out to fish for health. He tries this thing and that thing. He consults this doctor and that doctor. He indulges in all kinds of absurd athletic exercises. He tries first one climate and then another. He tries the best cure and the worst cure. He grows steadily worse.

That is the story of most consumptives. Finally, when the consumptive dies, the doctor shrugs his shoulders and pronounces consumption incurable. A thirty years' consumption of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has demonstrated that it cures 95 per cent of all cases of consumption, if taken in the earlier stages of the disease, before the lungs are too far wasted. In a one cure all cases of consumption, even the lungs. That spot is the stomach.

A consumptive never really begins to die until his stomach gives out. The "Golden Medical Discovery" not only braces up the stomach, but acts directly on the lungs, healing them and driving out all impurities. Healers of medicine dealers will not urge you to take an inferior substitute.

"I had a very bad cough, also night sweats, and was almost in my grave with consumption," writes Mrs. Clara A. McIntyre, Box 17, Ashland, Middlesex Co., Mass. "A friend of mine recommended Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and I took it. I had taken half of the first bottle I felt much better. I kept on until I had taken three bottles. That was all I needed. I got well and strong again."

Whenever constipation is one of the complicating causes of disease, the most perfect remedy is Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, which are always effective, yet absolutely mild and harmless. There never was any other remedy which can take their place. They never gripe.

A LIFE SAVED.

Dr. J. F. Cook, the Botanical Specialist, Succeeds Where Others Fail.

To whom it may concern: This is to certify that Bertha P. Conner, of Mt. Angel precinct, Marion county, Oregon, has suffered from a cancerous growth in the left ear for about three years. The growth was cut out twice and burned out once by Albany Physicians, but the growth came back as bad as ever, and pained her so badly that she had to be taken from school. After three weeks' treatment by Dr. J. F. Cook, of Salem, Oregon, the Botanical Specialist, the growth promptly disappeared, and at this date, four months since treatment was begun, the growth has not reappeared, and the ear has entirely healed leaving only the scars inflicted by the Albany doctors.

I hereby certify that the above statement is absolutely true, and that Bertha P. Conner, the person mentioned in the affidavit, has resided in my family since early childhood, bearing the relationship to me of niece.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this eighth day of June, 1899. W. W. Hall, county clerk of Marion county, Oregon.
